What this record is and is not

ExhibitPrep records how a file was prepared and lets you confirm later that a file is byte-for-byte the one it produced. It does not authenticate the underlying document, prove who created it, or establish that it is what it purports to be — that remains the proponent's burden under the applicable evidence rules. It is not an electronic signature, not a timestamp from any authority (times come from the preparing device's own clock), and not a certification by ExhibitPrep. A matching hash shows the file has not changed since the record was made; it cannot show that the record itself was kept safely, so keep the record with the matter file.

Re-check the uploaded file against the hash above at `/verify`, or with `shasum -a 256` (macOS/Linux) or `certutil -hashfile <file> SHA256` (Windows).

Text is set in Noto Sans; identifiers and hashes in Space Mono; emoji in Noto Emoji (monochrome — a multi-part emoji may appear as its separate symbols). Every character in this transcript was rendered by these fonts.
